IN THE CLAIMS

List of Claims:

propagating a timing signal through said network from said first node to each said end nodes;

transmitting a signal indicative of a data structure type from the first node to each end node, said data structure type identifying ~~the~~ a data format for transmission from said end node to said end terminals;

Art Unit: 2115

transmitting a delay figure from said first node to each end node, said delay figure being indicative of ~~the~~ a maximum transmission delay between said first node and any one of said end nodes; and transmitting payload data between said first node and said end terminals, whereby the payload data transmitted between each end node and the corresponding end terminal is formatted in said identified data structure format in accordance with said timing signal and adjusted in dependence on said delay figure such that payload data transmission from each end node to each end terminal occurs substantially synchronously.
